Reporting requirements for infrastructure contributions and planning agreements under the EP&A Regulation

Background

New reporting and accounting requirements for infrastructure contributions and planning agreements were introduced into the EP&A Regulation on 12 February 2021 through the Environmental Planning and Assessment Amendment (Development Contributions) Regulation 2021. These changes implement recommendations outlined in the 'Review of Governance in the NSW Planning System' (Kaldas review) which called for greater transparency and accountability in the way infrastructure contributions are collected and spent.

The Regulation amendments are part of a package of improvements to the contributions system exhibited from April to June 2020. They contribute to the NSW Government's commitment to fix the uncertainty in the infrastructure contributions system to boost investment. They are consistent with recommendations in the NSW Productivity Commission's report on the review of the infrastructure contributions system in NSW to increase transparency and accountability.

Requirements for Councils

By 1 July 2022 councils will be required to publish the following information on their individual websites and on the NSW Planning Portal:

- Copies of all planning agreements (including amendments and variations to the agreements).
- Copies of the explanatory notes relating to those agreements or amendments.
- Planning agreement registers with additional information required in the amending Regulation.
- Local contributions (s7.11 and s7.12) registers with additional information required in the amending Regulation.
- Annual financial statements for planning agreements and local infrastructure contributions showing aggregate totals of money, land, and works/works-in-kind received (also referred to as 'material public benefit').
- Copies of all current contributions plans and current contribution rates under each plan.
- Annual report information related to contributions expenditure, including a detailed breakdown of contributions expenditure by project.

Online publication requirements

Councils and planning authorities are required to make reporting documents available on their websites and the Planning Portal. To allow for regular updates, Councils are able to keep up-to-date planning agreement and local contributions registers on their individual websites and include a link to these on the NSW Planning Portal.

Templates

The indicative templates presented here provide guidance to councils regarding the format and contents of each of the reporting requirements. The templates identify the relevant EP&A Regulation clauses for each of the requirements. Councils should refer to the relevant clauses for details on the specific legislative requirements.

The templates include:

- Indicative Contributions Plans Register
- Indicative Notes to Financial Statement for Contributions Plans
- Indicative Annual Report Table for Contributions Plans
- Indicative Council Planning Agreements Register
- Indicative Note to Annual Financial Statement for Council Planning Agreements

The use of these templates is not mandatory. Councils are able to meet the requirements by adapting their own processes in line with individual accounting and register software requirements. Reporting in excel format is preferable, but not mandatory.
